

* 17 Terry's dream (→ p. 71/ex. 3)

a) Read the text.

Terry is dog-tired after the audition. It has been a long day. After supper he plays his favourite computer game and goes to bed early. He soon has an interesting dream ...

Terry has gone to Hollywood for an audition with Jake Martin, a famous director¹. Everything in Hollywood is big and strange. Terry is nervous. He wants to have a part in the next Spiderman film. He is waiting for his audition in the studio when a man comes past.

"Hi," he says. "Are you waiting for someone?"

"Yes, I've got an audition at 2 o'clock for a part in the new Spiderman film."

"Oh, but it's only 12 o'clock. Are you English?"

"Yes, my name's Terry. I'm from Greenwich."

"Oh, I lived in London once. Let's go to the cafeteria and have a burger and a coke, and you can tell me how London has changed. The auditions start at 2 o'clock, so you've got a lot of time."

"OK. I feel a bit hungry. A burger and coke – that's a brilliant idea."

Terry tells him all about Greenwich. The man is very interested and asks a lot of questions.

Then he says, "Oh, it's half past one. It's time to go back to work. See you!"

Terry goes back to the studio. He is very nervous. A woman comes out and says, "You can come in now. Mr Martin is ready to see you." The director is sitting in his chair. He gets up and says, "Hi Terry, it was good to talk at lunch." Now Terry knows – he has just had lunch with Jake Martin, the famous director!

And then Terry wakes up ...
